WSU Student Elected to serve on National Committee for PRSSA 10,000 Members

Detroit, MI –Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) members from across the country gathered in New Orleans this past weekend to elect ten to serve on the National Committee. This committee serves over 10,000 members and manages the business affairs for its 284 Chapters.

Wayne State University Junior, Jenna Huskinson was elected Vice President of Regional Activities by chapter delegates. “Running for National Vice President of Regional Activities was not easy but it was very rewarding,” Huskinson said. “The election process challenged my passion, knowledge and ability to improve the PRSSA organization.”

Members running for national office are required to submit an application answering questions about leadership, and involvement in PRSSA on the local level. Each nominee attends an assembly and presents their platform to delegates representing each Chapter in the country. The nominees give five minute speeches detailing how they plan to fulfill and improve the position they are running and then respond to 15 minutes of questions from the floor. Finally a vote is taken and the member with the most votes will serve on the National Committee for the upcoming year.

“I am thrilled to have this opportunity and anxious to start accomplishing this year’s objectives with the incoming National Committee. I am honored to represent Wayne State University and our PRSSA chapter on a national level,” said Huskinson. A transfer student from The University of Findlay, Huskinson served as the President of her chapter in Ohio. Since attending Wayne State she has been actively involved in helping the WSU Chapter build a local and national presence.

“Jenna is the type of person you love to be around,” said Jared Bryan, President of PRSSA at Wayne State. “She has helped to create the energy we need to provide the best for our members, and we are proud to have her on our team.”
