

Tanner Friedman Internship Program

Our Firm

Tanner Friedman is a Farmington Hills, Michigan-based strategic communications firm specializing in traditional and emerging media relations, adversity management and public relations counsel. Our diverse client roster includes Forgotten Harvest, Pfizer and Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit.

Our Values

We value mutual respect, collaboration, open and honest communications, client service and work/life balance. At all times, we adhere to a “we” not “me” mentality.

Our Internships

The goal of our internships is to provide student participants with a meaningful, multi-dimensional, “real world” experience that will tangibly augment their educational background and help build a foundation on which they can base a professional career.

We want our interns to learn and contribute with an opportunity to do both in a range of areas, including research, writing, media relations, and client meetings. Our interns are enrolled college students earning class credit toward their college degree.

Students seeking a degree in public relations—whether agency, corporate or nonprofit—are preferred; in particular those that have successfully completed a basic level of corresponding college course work.

Among the skills most important to any PR professional: good judgment, writing and overall communications skills, ability to think creatively, multi-task and work effectively both individually and as part of a team.
